

Georgetown University
School of Continuing Studies (SCS)
Consent for Disclosure of Educational Records

Georgetown University accords its students all rights under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) of 1974. Details of Georgetown's student records policy, which implements this federal law, can be found in the corresponding SCS Student Handbook. In order to ensure student privacy, SCS faculty, staff, and administrators will only discuss aspects of a student's record with the student (unless the student signs an official waiver) or with other university officials who have a legitimate educational interest in reviewing the student's record to fulfill their professional responsibilities at Georgetown.
